Personalized Scar Care Options

Scars can form after surgery, acne, injuries, burns, stretch marks, or other skin concerns. While scarring is a natural part of the healing process, every scar is different. Factors like skin type, scar location, age of the scar, sensitivity, and overall health can all affect how a scar looks and feels over time.

Because scars are not one-size-fits-all, some individuals may benefit from a customized approach.

Our compounding pharmacy can work with your healthcare provider to prepare personalized topical scar formulations based on your prescription. These customized options may allow for specific ingredients, strengths, and dosage forms that better fit your skin and treatment plan.

Depending on your provider's recommendation, compounded scar care formulations may include ingredients that support:

- Skin hydration and moisture retention
- Texture and tone concerns
- Barrier support
- Sensitive skin needs
- Raised, thickened, or uneven scar areas
- Acne-related or post-surgical scarring

Formulations may be prepared as creams, gels, ointments, sprays, or liquids, depending on the location of the scar, your skin type, and how the medication needs to be applied.

For patients with sensitivities, certain dyes, fragrances, preservatives, or other inactive ingredients may also be avoided when appropriate.

Scar care often takes time and consistency. Your provider can help determine what type of treatment may be appropriate and how long it may take to notice changes.

Have questions about customized scar care? Talk with your healthcare provider or contact our compounding pharmacy to learn more.
